

Contributors

Bruce Baker (PhD, University of St Andrews, Scotland) is assistant professor of business ethics at Seattle Pacific University.

Thomas A. Betts (MBA, Western Michigan University) is associate professor of business at Calvin College. He is also a business and marketing consultant with thirty years of industry experience.

Brian D. Cawley (PhD, University of Akron) is associate professor of business at Calvin College. Along with teaching organizational behavior, human resource management, leadership, and industrial-organizational psychology, Dr. Cawley has served as an internal and external consultant to over ninety organizations over the last twenty-five years.

Robert H. Eames (MBA, University of Wisconsin) is professor of business and director of the Calvin Center for Innovation in Business at Calvin College.

Peter S. Heslam (DPhil, University of Oxford) is Director of Transforming Business and a senior member of Trinity College, University of Cambridge. Previously he was Director of the Entrepreneurial Leadership Initiative, University of Oxford. He has published widely on business, economics and religion and is the author of Creating a Christian Worldview: Abraham Kuyper's Lectures on Calvinism (Eerdmans). He is currently involved in case study research on Christian entrepreneurs in the United States and around the world.

Contributors

Richard J. Mouw (PhD, University of Chicago) is Professor of Faith and Public Life at Fuller Theological Seminary.

Jill R. Risner (DBA, Anderson University) is assistant professor of business at Calvin College. Her research interests include consumer behavior and marketing ethics.

Shirley J. Roels (PhD, Michigan State University; MBA, University of Michigan) was a professor of business at Calvin College and currently is the director of the Network for Vocation in Undergraduate Education (NetVUE) at the Council of Independent Colleges.

D. Eric Schansberg (PhD, Texas A&M) is professor of economics at Indiana University Southeast (New Albany) and the author of Turn Neither to the Right nor to the Left: A Thinking Christian's Guide to Politics and Public Policy.

Thomas M. Smith (PhD, University of Michigan) is the Dr. Leon A. Bosch '29 Professor of Management at Hope College in Holland, Michigan. Among other things, he enjoys working at the intersection of operations management and Christian theology.

Debbie Snyder (PhD, Kent State University, CPA, CGMA, MHA, The Ohio State University) is professor of accounting at Calvin College.

Peter J. Snyder (PhD, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee) is assistant professor of business at Calvin College.

Jason Stansbury (PhD, Vanderbilt University) is assistant professor of business and the James and Judith Chambery Fellow for the Study of Business Ethics at Calvin College. He serves on the editorial boards of Business Ethics Quarterly and the Journal of Biblical Integration in Business, and his research has appeared in Business Ethics Quarterly, the Canadian Journal of Administrative Sciences, the Journal of Business Ethics, and Research in the Sociology of Organizations. His research interests include moral imagination, religious ethics in organizations, organizational virtue, and critical business ethics.

Marilyn Stansbury (MBA, Xavier University) is a CPA, CGMA, and assistant professor of business at Calvin College. She has more than twelve years of public accounting experience. She worked at Deloitte & Touche (Deloitte) for almost ten years, with three of those years at the firm's national office in Wilton, Connecticut.

Leonard D. Van Drunen (PhD, Purdue University, MSc The London School of Economics and Political Science) is professor of business and business department chair at Calvin College. Previously he was a managing director at JP Morgan Chase and has worked in banking in New York, Tokyo, and London.