

Contributors

William B. Allen is professor emeritus of political science and dean emeritus of James Madison College at Michigan State University. Currently, he serves as Veritas Fund Senior Fellow in the Matthew J. Ryan Center for the Study of Free Institutions and the Public Good at Villanova University. He also serves as associate pastor at First Baptist Church, Havre de Grace, Maryland.

Joshua Lee Harris (PhD Candidate, Institute for Christian Studies/VU University Amsterdam conjoint program) is a junior member at the Institute for Christian Studies in Toronto. He has published on a number of topics, including issues in philosophy of language, philosophy of religion, and social and political philosophy.

Jeffrey E. Haymond (PhD, George Mason University) is dean of the School of Business Administration and associate professor of economics at Cedarville University.

Dotan Leshem (PhD, Bar Ilan University) is a senior lecturer at the School of Political Science, University of Haifa. His article “Oikonomia Redefined” was awarded best article of 2014 by the History of Economics Society. Leshem is the author of the book The Origins of Neoliberalism: Modeling the Economy from Jesus to Foucault (Columbia University Press, June 2016).

Contributors

Jonathan S. Marko (PhD, Calvin Theological Seminary) is assistant professor of philosophical and systematic theology at Cornerstone University. He has a forthcoming book comparing the religious epistemologies of John Locke and John Toland.

Ferdinand E. Tablan (PhD, University of Santo Tomas, Manila) is an adjunct instructor in philosophy at Bellevue College. He has published articles on philosophy, business ethics, and Catholic Social Teaching in journals such as the Journal of Business Ethics, Φιλοσοφία International Journal of Philosophy, and the Journal of Religion and Business Ethics.