

Contributors

Guillaume Bignon (PhD, London School of Theology) is a philosopher and apologist with Association Axiome, the society of French-speaking Christian scholars. He is also the head of software development for the commodities trading floor of a corporate and investment bank in New York City.

Jeffrey D. Chinery is a certified financial planner (CFP®) and has been a financial advisor for over twenty years. His great delight is assisting clients in making the wisest financial decisions by incorporating a biblical perspective.

Brian Engelland (DBA, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale) is Associate Dean, Ordinary Professor of Marketing, and the Edward J. Pryzbyla Chair of Business and Economics in The Busch School of Business and Economics at The Catholic University of America. He is a fellow of the Marketing Management Association and the 2013 recipient of the Lifetime Contributor to Marketing Award from the Society for Marketing Advances.

Chad Engelland (PhD, The Catholic University of America) is assistant professor of philosophy and graduate director of the MA program in philosophy at the University of Dallas in Irving, Texas. He is the author of Ostension: Word Learning and the Embodied Mind and The Way of Philosophy: An Introduction.

Wojciech Giertych, OP (STD, PUST-Angelicum) is the theologian of the papal household and consultant of two congregations for the doctrine of the faith and for the causes of saints. His research and publications are in the field of moral theology.

Joost W. Hengstmengel (PhD, Erasmus University Rotterdam) is postdoctoral researcher at the Tilburg School of Catholic Theology, Tilburg University, The Netherlands.

Ian Irwin is a doctoral student at Bowling Green State University. His research focuses on public reason liberalism and political legitimacy.

Kęstutis Kėvalas (PhD, Vytautas Magnus University, Kaunas, Lithuania) is auxiliary bishop of the archdiocese of Kaunas, and a lecturer of moral theology and Catholic social teaching at Vytautas Magnus University in Kaunas, Lithuania. His interdisciplinary theses and studies on theology and the free economy were acknowledged by the Novak Award in 2010. He received his BA and MA (2000) as well as a licentiate degree in theology at St. Mary's Seminary and University in Baltimore (2001). He is a well-known expert on Christian social ethics, the free market, and human dignity to the people of his home country.

W. Bradford Littlejohn (PhD, University of Edinburgh) is president of the Davenant Trust, a nonprofit organization dedicated to the renewal of Christian wisdom at the intersection of the church and academy. He also teaches philosophy at Moody Bible Institute, is a member of Covenant Investment Advisors, LLC, and associate editor of Political Theology. He researches and writes in the fields of Reformation studies, political theology, and Christian ethics. He is the author of more than a dozen articles and book chapters in these fields and has authored the books, The Mercersburg Theology and the Quest for Reformed Catholicity (Pickwick, 2009), Richard Hooker: A Companion to His Life and Work (Cascade, 2015), and The Peril and Promise of Christian Liberty: Richard Hooker, the Puritans, and Protestant Political Theology (Eerdmans, forthcoming 2017).

Cristian R. Loza Adauí (PhD Candidate, Catholic University of Eichstätt-Ingolstadt, Germany) is lecturer and researcher of business administration, strategic management, and business ethics at the Institute of Economics of the Friedrich-Alexander University Erlangen-Nürnberg (FAU), Germany.

Andrew M. McGinnis (PhD, Calvin Theological Seminary) is a research fellow and associate editor at the Acton Institute and a research fellow at the Junius Institute for Digital Reformation Research.

Giorgio Mion (PhD, Ca' Foscari University of Venice, Italy) is associate professor at the Department of Business Administration and Accounting Studies of the University of Verona, Italy.

Catherine R. Pakaluk (PhD, Harvard University) is assistant professor of economics at the Busch School of Business and Economics at the Catholic University of America. She is the 2015 recipient of the Acton Institute's Novak Award.

D. Eric Schansberg (PhD, Texas A&M University) is professor of economics at Indiana University Southeast.

Dominique Rey (PhD, Clermont-Ferrand) has served as bishop of Fréjus-Toulon, France, since his ordination to the episcopate in 2000 by Cardinal Jean-Marie Lustiger. He served France as a financial inspector in the Ministry of Finance between 1976 and 1979. Bishop Rey earned a degree in theology and a degree in canon law at the Institute Catholique de Paris while studying for the priesthood. On February 6, 2014, he was appointed consultant to the Pontifical Council for the Laity by Pope Francis. Bishop Rey is the author of the book Catholicism, Ecology, and the Environment: A Bishop's Reflection (Acton Institute, 2014).

Robert A. Sirico (MDiv, The Catholic University of America) is a Roman Catholic priest. He is founder and president of the Acton Institute for the Study of Religion & Liberty.

Manfred Spieker (PhD, Munich University) is professor emeritus of Christian social thought in the department of Catholic theology at Osnabrück University, Osnabrück, Germany. From 2012 until 2016 he was consultor of the Papal Council Justitia et Pax.

Andrew Yuengert (PhD, Yale; BA, UVA) is Blanche Seaver Professor of Social Science and professor of Economics at Pepperdine University. Professor Yuengert's research addresses questions on the boundaries of economics, ethics, and Catholic social doctrine. During 2015–2016 he was the William E. Simon

Contributors

Visiting Fellow in Religion and Public Life at the Madison Program in American Ideals and Institutions at Princeton University. He has served as editor of the journal Faith & Economics; his most recent book is Approximating Prudence: Aristotelian Practical Wisdom and Economic Models of Choice (Palgrave MacMillan, 2012). His current book project explores the role of practical wisdom in Catholic social doctrine.