

Contributors

Jordan J. Ballor (Dr. theol., University of Zurich; PhD, Calvin Theological Seminary) is senior research fellow and director of publishing at the Acton Institute as well as a postdoctoral researcher in theology and economics at the Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam. He also serves as associate director of the Junius Institute for Digital Reformation Research at Calvin Theological Seminary and a general editor of the Abraham Kuyper Collected Works in Public Theology series as well as Sources in Early Modern Economic Economics, Ethics, and Law series.

David M. Hart (PhD, King's College, Cambridge) taught in the department of history at the University of Adelaide, Australia, before taking up the position of Director of the Online Library of Liberty Project at Liberty Fund, Indianapolis. His area of academic interest is the history of classical liberal thought and political economy in France. He is currently editing the Collected Works of Frédéric Bastiat in 6 volumes for Liberty Fund, and his most recent book is an edited collection on classical-liberal class analysis, Social Class and State Power: Exploring an Alternative Radical Tradition (Palgrave, 2018).

Jeffrey E. Haymond (PhD, George Mason University) is professor of economics at Cedarville University and Dean of the School of Business Administration.

Klaus Issler (PhD, Michigan State University in education; ThM, Dallas Theological Seminary; BA in philosophy, California State University, Long Beach) is professor of educational studies and theology at Talbot School of Theology, Biola University. His research in the theology of work and stewardship has appeared in the Journal of the Evangelical Theological Society. His research of the Christian discipleship formation process appeared in Living into the Life of Jesus: The Formation of Christian Character (InterVarsity, 2012) and Wasting Time with God: A Christian Spirituality of Friendship with God (InterVarsity, 2001).

Contributors

Dylan Pahman is a research fellow of the Acton Institute for the Study of Religion & Liberty, where he serves as managing editor of the Journal of Markets & Morality.

Todd Scacewater (PhD, Westminster Theological Seminary) is a pastor in Missouri, an affiliate faculty member of Colorado Christian University, and a research fellow for the Center for Christian Social Ethics. He owns and operates Exegetical Tools and Fontes Press.

Daniel Wilmoth (PhD, Cornell University) is an economist with the Office of Economic Research within the Office of Advocacy at the United States Small Business Administration.

Michael Wittmer (PhD, Calvin Theological Seminary) is professor of systematic theology at Grand Rapids Theological Seminary.