

---

Contributors

Francisco Gómez Camacho teaches in the faculty of theology at the Universidad Pontificia Comillas in Madrid. He earned a licentiate in philosophy from the Facultad Complutense de la Compañía de Jesús, a doctorate in theology from the Universidad Pontificia Comillas, and a doctorate in economics from the Universidad Complutense de Madrid. He has held visiting professorships at numerous universities including Universidad de Salamanca, Universidad del Pacífico (Lima, Peru), Universidad Católica de Santiago de Chile, and Universidad Internacional Menéndez Pelayo. He is an internationally recognized expert on Spanish economic thought in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries and has prepared modern critical editions of several works by Luis de Molina on such topics as the just price, usury, and money.

Clive Beed retired in 1993 as senior lecturer in the department of economics, University of Melbourne. He lectured in the faculty of economics, University of Melbourne, from 1963, for most of the time in the department of economic geography, where his main research interest was urban geography and planning. In 1983, his department was merged with the department of economics and the teaching of economic geography was limited appreciably. Thereupon, he taught economics increasingly, and from the late 1980s became more interested in the methodology and philosophy of the subject. In related areas, he with wife, Cara Beed (retired lecturer in sociology, Australian Catholic University, Melbourne) have published in the Journal of Economic Methodology, Journal of Economic Issues, Review of Political Economy, Cambridge Journal of Economics, and Journal of Socio-Economics, among others. Clive and Cara are (honorary) fellows, Centre for Applied Christian Ethics, Ridley (Anglican) Theological College, University of Melbourne.

Contributors

Richard Ekins is a lecturer at the faculty of law, University of Auckland (NZ) and a member of Balliol College, Oxford where he is pursuing research in legal and political theory. He is a top achiever doctoral scholar and humane studies fellow, a past recipient of a Commonwealth Scholarship, and winner of the Australian Society for Legal Philosophy Essay Prize for 2005. His recent publications include “Judicial Supremacy and the Rule of Law,” (2003) 119 The Law Quarterly Review 127–52.

Jeannine Emery has a degree in Spanish Literature, and a master’s in nonfiction writing. She works as editor and translator in both English and Spanish and lives in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Joseph F. Johnston Jr. is a retired partner in the firm of Drinker Biddle & Reath. A graduate of Harvard Law School, Mr. Johnston specializes in corporate law and has taught a course in the liability of corporate directors and officers at the University of Virginia Law School. He has written and lectured on many aspects of corporate governance and fiduciary duty. He is also a member of the American Law Institute.

Jude Chua Soo Meng is doctoral candidate in philosophy at National University of Singapore. He is currently attached to the Philosophy Centre of Raffles Girl’s Secondary School, Singapore, where he also teaches philosophy for the Raffles Program. He was visiting graduate fellow at the Center for Philosophy of Religion at the University of Notre Dame in 2003 and is an elected fellow of the Royal Anthropological Institute, and the Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland. His work has appeared in the Journal of Markets and Morality, Maritain Studies, Periodicum Angelicum, The Modern Schoolman, and the Journal of Chinese Philosophy, among others.