

Contributors

Maria Sophia Aguirre (PhD University of Notre Dame) is a professor of economics, the director of economic programs, and academic chair of the Masters in Integral Economic Development in the School of Business and Economics of the Catholic University of America. She is also the founder and president of the Foundation for Social and Cultural Advancement (SCA).

Uchechukwu Aladi (PhD Pontifical Lateran University) is presently the parochial vicar of St. John the Evangelist and Assumption Parish, Cascina, Archdiocese of Pisa, Italy.

Vincent Bacote (PhD Drew University) is associate professor of theology at Wheaton College and director of the Center for Applied Christian Ethics. He is the author of The Spirit in Public Theology: Appropriating the Legacy of Abraham Kuyper (2005) and has contributed to other books, including Keep Your Head Up (2012), Prophetic Evangelicals (2012), On Kuyper (2013), and Aliens in the Promised Land (2013).

Angelina N. Christie (PhD George Mason University) is an assistant professor of economics at the Catholic University of America's School of Business and Economics. While at George Mason, she specialized in experimental economics at ICES (Interdisciplinary Center for Economics Science). In her research, Dr. Christie investigates ethical and moral dimensions of individual and market behavior using behavioral experimental economics methodology.

Victor V. Claar (PhD West Virginia University) is professor of economics at Henderson State University, which is located in Arkadelphia, Arkansas. During the 2006–2007 academic year, he served as a Republic of Armenia Fulbright Scholar, teaching graduate students and conducting research as a visiting associate professor at the American University of Armenia.

Eduardo J. Echeverria is professor of philosophy and systematic theology at Sacred Heart Major Seminary, Detroit. His most recent book is Berkouwer and Catholicism: Disputed Questions (Leiden/Boston: Brill, 2013).

Wolfgang Grassl serves as professor of business administration and holds the Dale and Ruth Michels Endowed Chair of Business at St. Norbert College in DePere, Wisconsin. His fields of research are consumer behavior, marketing strategy, Austrian economics, and Catholic social doctrine. He last published Property (2012) with the Acton Institute.

Robin Klay (PhD Princeton University) is professor emerita of economics at Hope College, where she taught from 1979 until her retirement in 2010. In addition to teaching and speaking on economic development, international economics, and the history of economic thought, Klay's research and teaching have explored connections between economic analysis and policy and Christian faith and practice.

Raquel Lázaro (PhD University of Navarra) is the head of the Department of Philosophy, University of Navarre. Her principal research interests are the Scottish enlightenment and seventeenth-century French philosophy—virtues, passions, and identity—and she has carried out research at the universities of Glasgow and the Sorbonne, in Glasgow and Paris, respectively, as well as at Boston College.

Zachary M. Mabee is a seminarian for the Catholic Diocese of Lansing, Michigan. He studied philosophy and linguistics at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and also completed a licentiate in philosophy at the Catholic University of America. He is currently completing his theological studies and preparation for priestly ordination at the Pontifical Gregorian University and Pontifical North American College in Rome, Italy.

Paul Myers was the chief executive officer of Ten Thousand Villages from 1989–2006. He spent 2007–2011 as the chairman of the board of the World Fair Trade Organization (WFTO) and assisted in the implementation of a 40 million dollar Gates Foundation grant through International Development Enterprises (IDE) to bring low-cost irrigation systems to dollar-a-day farmers.

Jean-Yves Naudet (ScD University of Aix-Marseille) received his doctorate of science in politics and is a professor at the Université d'Aix-Marseille, director of the Centre de recherches en éthique économique, president of the Association of Catholic Economists of France, vice president of the International Association for Christian Social Teaching, and a member of the Académie Catholique de France.

Héctor Rocha (PhD London Business School) is associate professor of business policy and entrepreneurship at IAE Business School, Austral University Argentina. His thesis on clusters, entrepreneurship, and regional development won a merit prize from the European Union.

Luca Sandonà (PhD Cardenal Herrera University) is adjunct professor of theories of economic development, Pontifical Lateran University, State of Vatican City, and teaching fellow of economic history, political economy, and economic policy, eCampus University, Novedrate, Italy.

Eric Schansberg is professor of economics at Indiana University Southeast in New Albany. He is the author of Turn Neither to the Right Nor to the Left: A Thinking Christian's Guide to Politics and Public Policy and the co-author of Thoroughly Equipped, a 21-month curriculum for developing lay leaders in the Church.

Todd Steen is the Granger Professor of Economics at Hope College in Holland, Michigan, where he has taught since 1988. He currently serves as managing editor of Christian Scholar's Review. In 2011 he co-edited Taking Every Thought Captive: Forty Years of the Christian Scholar's Review, published by ACU Press.

Geoffrey Strickland (JD Ave Maria School of Law) is pursuing a licentiate in canon law at the Pontifical University of the Holy Cross (expected September 2013). He serves as an international associate and legal analyst for Priests for Life (www.priestsforlife.org) in Rome, Italy, and as a collaborator with the Pontifical Council for the Family.

Antoine Suarez is a Swiss quantum physicist, philosopher, and bioethicist; director of the Center for Quantum Philosophy (Zürich and Geneva); academic leader of the bioethics program of the Social Trends Institute (Barcelona, New York); and a cofounder and member of the board of the Swiss Society of Bioethics.

Jim Wishloff (PhD Case Western Reserve University) is presently associate professor for the University of Lethbridge in Edmonton, Alberta.

Contributors

Vladimir Wozniuk (PhD University of Virginia) is professor emeritus at Western New England University and currently a Center Associate at Harvard University's Davis Center of Russian and Eurasian Studies. His areas of scholarly interest are international relations, religion and political thought, and Russian and East European affairs. He has edited, translated, and annotated four volumes of essays by the nineteenth-century Russian philosopher V. S. Soloviev in addition to other books, book chapters, journal articles, conference proceedings, and miscellaneous publications.