

Contributors

Justin M. Anderson (PhD, Katholieke Universiteit Leuven) is assistant professor of Christian ethics at the Immaculate Conception Seminary/School of Theology of Seton Hall University. His research focuses on concepts of virtue, both in Thomas Aquinas and in contemporary virtue ethics.

Joseph A. Burke (PhD, UW-Madison) is associate professor of economics and chair of the economics department at Ave Maria University. He is also a research fellow at the Stein Center for Social Research where he works on the economics of marriage and fertility.

Edward J. O'Boyle (PhD, Saint Louis University) is senior research associate with Mayo Research Institute, specializing in personalist economics that focuses on economic agency in which homo economicus and the individualism of orthodox economics are replaced by the acting person and personalism. He is a past president of the Association for Social Economics and a recipient of its Thomas Divine Award for lifetime contributions to social economics and the social economy.

Brian K. Stow (PhD, Vanderbilt University) is an associate professor of economics and the BB&T Professor for the Study of Capitalism at Western Kentucky University.

Contributors

Claudia W. Strow (PhD, Vanderbilt University) is an associate professor of economics at Western Kentucky University.

David S. Sytsma (PhD, Princeton Theological Seminary) is research curator of the Junius Institute for Digital Reformation Research and adjunct professor at Calvin Theological Seminary. He recently coedited Church and School in Early Modern Protestantism (Brill, 2013).

Hans-Martien ten Napel (PhD, Leiden University) is an associate professor of Constitutional and Administrative Law at Leiden University in the Netherlands, where he is also research fellow of the Leiden Law School. Before his transfer to the law faculty, he taught at the department of political science and was a post-doctoral fellow at the Minda de Gunzburg Center for European Studies at Harvard University.

David V. Urban (PhD, University of Illinois at Chicago) is associate professor of English at Calvin College. He is the cocompiler and coeditor of John Milton: An Annotated Bibliography, 1989–1999 (Duquesne University Press, 2011) and the coeditor of Visionary Milton (Duquesne University Press, 2010). His articles on Milton have appeared or are forthcoming in Milton Studies, Milton Quarterly, Appositions, Connotations, and Studies in Philology.

David VanDrunen (JD, Northwestern University School of Law; PhD, Loyola University Chicago) is the Robert B. Strimple Professor of Systematic Theology and Christian Ethics at Westminster Seminary California. His most recent book is Divine Covenants and Moral Order: A Biblical Theology of Natural Law (Eerdmans, 2014).

Patrick J. Welch (PhD, University of Pittsburgh) is a professor of economics at Saint Louis University. His primary research interest is in the history of economic thought.